

Sandler Lanz

Specialists in executive coaching

GERRY BRANNAN

Gerry Brannan has over twenty years' experience consulting to large organisations internationally. For the last seven years he has specialised in coaching senior executives, particularly at director level, and 'high potentials' across the public and private sectors.

Gerry brings an empathic and challenging style to his coaching work which addresses both developmental and performance issues. He has an excellent track record of success, building rapport quickly and facilitating productive conversations early in the coaching process. His approach combines a pragmatic focus on his clients' business goals alongside supporting them to develop greater insight into their values and longer-term priorities. Gerry has particular expertise in cross-cultural coaching with individuals and teams.

Management consulting is at the heart of Gerry's business background, working with Deloitte's and Cap Gemini Ernst & Young, where he held a senior management position with European responsibility. His business knowledge is enhanced by a professional accounting qualification (ACMA) and an MBA from London Business School.

Gerry is a certified executive coach and a member of the European Mentoring and Coaching Council (EMCC). He has also completed substantial psychology training, including a Diploma in Applied Psychology from London University. He is qualified in the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator (MBTI®) and FIRO-B psychometrics and in Lominger's Voices® (360 feedback tool).

Gerry has worked with a wide range of public and private sector organisations including, O2, EDF, The Competition Commission, Fujitsu, WPP, Credit Suisse, Lloyd's Register, Masstock, DTZ, The Prudential, Hay Consulting, The Natural History Museum, Glaxo, BT, John Lewis, Subsea7, Kingsley Napley and a number of privately owned medium-sized businesses.